Your job applies relevance

Highly relevant job applies: One with the highest match for criteria like key skills, experience, functional areas, industry, salary and location.

Relevant job applies: One with an intermediate match for criteria like key skills, experience, functional areas, industry, salary and location.

Not so relevant job applies: One with the lowest match for criteria like key skills, experience, functional areas, industry, salary and location.

Why relevance matters in your job applications

When you apply for a job, a recruiter may or may not take action on your application depending on how well your profile matches the job description. A strong profile, combined with a closer match to the role requirements, significantly increases a recruiter's interest in you.

We recommend applying to jobs that closely align with your key skills, relevant work experience, salary expectations, and preferred location. Doing so will increase the number of 'Highly relevant' applications and help you get the most out of Naukri's platform.
